

Events and Parties

Editors' Picks: 15 Things to See in New York This Week

Mark your calendars.

Sarah Cascone, June 5, 2017

Installation view, "Ken Price: Eggs, 1961-1970" at Franklin Parrasch Gallery. Photo courtesy Julia Halperin.

15. "Ken Price: Eggs, 1961-1970" at Franklin Parrasch Gallery

Ed Ruscha once called Price's egg sculptures "psycho-erotic." "They made you scratch your palms," he said. Experience the palm-scratching psychosis for yourself at this show, which brings together nine of the legendary ceramicist's egg sculptures. The presentation spans the full nine-year period during which Price engaged in the form. Eight of the eggs are drawn from private collections; one is on loan from the Whitney; none is for sale. Contact the gallery to make a reservation for tours of eight or more people.

Location: Franklin Parrasch Gallery, 53 East 64th Street

Price: Free

Time: Tuesday-Saturday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m.

—Julia Halperin